Jay Meraw, Grade XII student at Austin O'Brien High School, Edmonton was given the Most Valuable Player Award at the team's annual football banquet held recently in Edmonton. The award was presented to him after a vote by his fellow team-mates.

Jay, son of Mr. and Mrs. Dean Meraw of Drayton Valley, was the starting quarterback for the Austin O'Brien Crusaders. Playing in the southern division of the Edmonton Senior High School Football League, Jay led his team to a won four, tied two and lost one record.

The Crusaders were edged out of the playoffs by the Bonnie Doon Lancers who went on to win the league. The Lancers subsequently lost the Provincial High School Championship the following week to Crescent Height High School of Calgary.

4-H Council Holds Annual Meeting

Members of the Parkland 4-H Council held its annual meeting at Smithfield Hall on December 13. Most of the clubs in the council area were represented.

After a few words of welcome from the president, Mr. Oliver Smith, reports from the various leaders were heard. Mr. Hutchinson reported on the Beef Club's show and sale at Drayton Valley. Mrs. Bruner reported on the 4-H rally which had been held in Evansburg.

Mr. Mazeppa reported on the newest club formed in the council last year, the 16-A tractor club. Mr. Brenenstuhl, on the Field Crops Club. He went on to explain that the whole field crops projects have been changed.

Mr. Case reported on the curling and bowling day the members of the council had had in Drayton Valley; the activities the council had taken part in at Camp He-Ho-Ha; and he also explained the radio communications system that had been established with council funds, to communicate from camp to the islands where the children go for camping.

Mrs. Charlet gave her report on the garden clubs and also the success of the west semi-final public speaking competiton held in Seba Beach. Because Mr. Freitag was absent to report on the east public speaking semi-finals, Mr. Smith reported for him.

Mr. Webber went on to report on the Northwest Region Public Speaking finals which had been held this year in the Spruce Grove Serplex. Mr. Doug Beinert, 4-H Specialist Northwest Council, then spoke on the year's activities in his department. He stressed the fact that to gain recognition as Junior Leader for the purpose of selection, a special application sheet had to be sent to him for approval. This also applied to those members taking self-determined projects for their club year. He also mentioned the fact that if there are enough members taking self-determined projects, they would

Plans Going Ahead For Silver Gloves

The Silver Gloves Boxing Tournament slated for Drayton Valley on January 22nd and 23rd already promises to be an outstanding event. From early indications it would seem that a possible total of seventy or more boys from all over Alberta will take part in this Silver Gloves Tourney.

Heading the Drayton Valley team in the tournament will be Ray Duperron. Ray will compete at 139 pounds. With some eight years of ring experience and fifty bouts to his credit Ray will be one of the senior boxers and one of the outstanding competitors in the tournament.

Another local boy who will see action in the "Gloves" is Eddie Laurer. He will be boxing in the 65 pound class.

There may be other Drayton Valley boys taking part, however, Coach Lawrence Duperron has not finalized his team as yet.

In the case of a Junior Tournament of this nature any boy over sixteen years of age is ineligible and on the other hand a boy must have a minimum of six official ring bouts before he can qualify for the Silver Gloves.

In a young and starting boxing club as in Drayton Valley these restrictions reduce the number of participants somewhat, however, this is a necessary measure in order to maintain the very high calibre of this event. Since its inception some five years ago the Alberta Silver Gloves has developed into one of the most popular and spectacular boxing events in the country.

CLOSING BYLAW AGAIN BEFORE TOWN COUNCIL

Problems encountered by the owners of Drayton Valley drug stores in attempting to adhere to the regulation regarding sale of goods other than prescriptions and medical supplies during open hours on Sundays and Mondays were described at the last regular meeting of Town Council.

Mr. Alf Armstrong and Mr. Dick Keldson approached council for assistance in solving their problem.

They were concerned about the unfavorable impression created when they refused the sale of other commodities while filling prescriptions. Many people, some from quite a distance, have been quite upset when faced with these circumstances, they said.

Failure to provide the service demanded by customers is creating a poor image for the town, they felt. The drug stores are not the only ones to suffer from lost customers, they said, but those who are unhappy with their treatment here are quite likely lost to the rest of the town's business places.

According to the bylaw drug stores are restricted to the sale of prescriptions and medical supplies when they are open at times when other stores are closed.

The druggists described their efforts to rope off portions of the stores and attempts to have those seeking medicines use back or side doors. None of these measures were satisfactory, they said.

They were of the opinion that restrictions should be removed from the bylaw or the bylaw rescinded entirely leaving hours of business in the hands of individual merchants.

Council members discussed the matter with Mr. Armstrong and Mr. Keldson for some time without reaching a decision. Members of council agreed that the feeling of the Retail Merchant Association should be determined before taking any action.

COUNCIL BRIEFS

Family Loss Heavy in Fire Tuesday

Fire at about 5:30 p.m. on Tuesday, December 14th caused heavy damage to the A. Chesterman home in Drayton Valley.

Members of the Drayton Valley Fire Department responded to the alarm and were able to save the house which suffered heavy interior damage. All furnishings, clothes and other family belongings were lost.

Cause of the fire is unknown.

Tuesday's fire followed closely on two other calls to the department in recent days.

On Friday, December 3rd firemen responded to a call at the Jack Thomas farm home near Rocky Rapids. A converted diesel stove had overheated but no damage was done.

On Monday, December 13th the department answered a call to the Lester Hutchinson residence in town. The fire was apparently caused by an overheated heat lamp being used to thaw out a water line.

Damage was confined to the bathroom of the house.

Bert Duperron Wins in Calgary

Bert Duperron continued his winning ways in the amateur boxing ring last Saturday night in Calgary. Bert handily took all three rounds and won a unanimous decision over Scotty Manyguns, a star performer from the Blackfoot Indian Reserve.

Duperron pressed the fight from the opening moments and only through this superior reach did Manyguns stay in contention throughout.

In another crowd-pleasing event Larry Lowhom of the Blackfoot Indian Reserve won a hard-fought decision over Walter Mastre of Drayton Valley. This was a bout in the 156 pound class.

Bill Burke of the Calgary Downtown Lions Club won over Bern Phillips of Drayton Valley in an interesting three round bout at the 120 pound limit.

Darcy Redford won a unanimous decision over Jimmy Seif of the Calgary Club. This was first ring action for both Phillips and Redford.

In another event on the fourteen bout card Jimmy Knight of Breton won a clear-out decision over Wayne Manyguns of the Blackfoot Reserve.

BY MRS. EDITH DEBY

It is a pleasure to be able to report that Mr. Ed. Hines is home from hospital. The operation on his spine appears to have been completely successful and he is feeling better than he has for months.

Dunington Hall was the scene of an old fashioned Christmas Concert on the evening of December 17th. The concert was sponsored by the Dunginton Women's Group and featured carols, recitations and skits. Following the program there were treats for the children and a delicious lunch for everyone.

Mrs. Pickup will have Connie and Gordon home to complete the family circle on Christmas Day.

Mr. John Grinde, of Wetaskiwin, is the guest of his brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Grinde for the holiday. Mr. Grinde has been a patient in the University Hsopital for some time and must return for further treatment when the holiday is over.

Mrs. David W. Glen writes from Pincher Creek that she and Mr. Glen will be going to Arizona in their camper early in January.

Mr. and Mrs. Al Chesterman were so unfortunate as to have their house and its contents completely destroyed by fire. Mr. Zander M. L. A. has been able to find a house for Chestermans at Tomahawk. A fire fund has been set up at both the Royal and the Treasury Branch to help the Chestermans and their seven children. Any contribution will be most welcome.

Linda and Mike Renkas will come from Edmonton to make the Cathrea family complete at Christmas.

Mr. and Mrs. Ole Stordalsvoll have moved into the new house on their farm at Pembina (west of Violet Grove).

Mr. Orest Haydey says "A banker takes a good deal of interest in the affairs of his neighbours usually about 12%".

Mrs. Fanny Davey will spend the holiday with her daughter and son-in-law and their family at Ardrossan.

The Dressler Clan will be gathering at the Bob Dressler's in Sherwood Park this Christmas.

Mrs. Terry Clelland, the former Sharon Haggerty, writes from Fox Creek to say that she and Terry have a son and daughter and that all are well.

Mr. and Mrs. Bohdan Urchyshyn are looking forward to the first complete family Christmas for some years. Their six children, the spouses of the married ones, and the five grandchildren will make the day a merry one.

The Dalton Heylands, The Gilbert Mitchells and both Darrell and Berry will be home to celebrate with the Lewis Williams.

Mrs. Martha (Grandma Oscar) writes from Quesnel, B. C. that she will be seeing us before long. Mrs. Oscar will make her home at the Stony Plain Senior Citizen's Home until the Drayton Valley Lodge is built. In the meantime we shall all look forward to a chat with her when she comes to visit.

In this, the last column for 1971, I would like to say "Thank You" to the people who have encouraged me with a kind word about my efforts in the past year.

Very Hearty and Sincere Good Wishes to all for Christmas and the New Year.

Household Items Sought

The community supply of household articles for the assistance of fire victims has been greatly reduced in recent days and badly in need of replenishment.

Assistance of residents would be appreciated in supplying household articles such as dishes, pots, pans, bedding, furniture, or practically anything that would be of value to a family that has lost home and possessions.

Anyone with articles to contribute is asked to drop them off at the W. I. rest room in the basement of the Town Hall.

Snowmobile Youth Tests

Testing for youth's snowmobile driving permits will take place from 10:00 a.m. to 12:00 noon on Monday, December 27th. Location of the test site is the Lions Kiddies Park, west of the hospital.

BERRYMOOR NEWS

Get well wishes go out to Mrs. Bernice Lietz, who recently underwent surgery at the Drayton Valley Hospital.

Gilbert Martin was a visitor this week at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Martin.

The Berrymoor Three B's Club held their annual Christmas party at the home of Mrs. Linda Van Ember on the afternoon of the 15th Due to the cold weather the crowd was smaller than usual. A vote of thanks goes to Santa Claus who took time out from his busy schedule to put in a much appreciated appearance. Somehow or other Santa looked bigger than when we last saw him. Wonder how come! Before Santa left he made the draw for the Christmas hamper that the club raffled. The lucky winner was Mrs. Valera Martin of Berrymoor with second draw going to Mrs. Mary Hopgood of Edmonton.

Mr. and Mrs. Bill Gilchrist are living in Berrymoor again after having been at Slave Lake for awhile.

The meeting held at Breton on December 13th to discuss the pro's and con's of forming a new county in this area was attended by a number of district residents.

TAX LOOPHOLE?

Municipal Affairs Minister Dave Russell appears to have made a very significant departure from accepted practice in moving to block the tax sale of two Wabamun brothers' farm. In an Edmonton news report Friday Mr. Russell said he would not approve the County of Parkland's tax sale of the land in arrears of taxes for the past fifteen years.

Perhaps in the spirit of the holiday season he has made a move that could have far-reaching results. The tax sale is the only weapon in the hands of muncipalities in the assessment field.

There is perhaps more to the story than the news report indicates, but if Mr. Russell intends to muzzle municipal authorities in this way, he may be opening the gates for a flood of tax protests.

Most of us pay our taxes as a democratic requirement -- many more would avoid paying if the opportunity was available. Perhaps Mr. Russell is providing the loophole for those who balk at paying their way.

LEGISLATIVE REPORT

By Kevin Peterson and Don Sellar (Of the Calgary Herald)

The Lougheed government handed a Christmas present to Alberta's senior citizens this year with the announcement that everyone over 65 will no longer have to pay medicare fees.

The premium-free medicare -- which includes the optional package covering drug pruchases, ambulance and other services -- is expected to apply to about 160,-000 Albertans, almost 10 per cent of the total population.

However, Premier Peter Lougheed sounded a bit of a warning with the announcement when he said the $6 to $8 million cost of the program would not be added to the provincial budget.

"We recognize that by undertaking such a significantly new budgetary program we will be forced to eliminate some desirable but lower priority existing programs and perhaps to delay implementation of some new programs," he said.

"Although beneficial, such programs do not have the same impact in assisting a segment of Albertans who have been deserving of a fairer share of provincial program expenditures than they have received in the past."

The talk of keeping within the present budget reflects a general problem for the Tory government: finding the funds to fulfill the relatively few money-spending promises they made during the election compaign.

The problem was one that would have faced every party if they had been elected. Alberta is spending more money that it takes in already and ambitious new programs almost demand new or increased taxes, a prospect not welcomed by any recently-elected government.

The premier made it clear in his announcement that he intends to fulfill the pledges made to senior citizens "This confirms new priorities for our government," he said. "We believe that,in times of inflation the senior citizen is entitled to priority where ever possible in government programs."

Municipal Affairs Minister Dave Russell has already indicated he is working on another campaign promise to senior citizens. He hopes to have legislation easing the property tax burden (particularly the part used to finance education) from senior citizens ready for the spring session, although more ambitious Tory reforms for property tax will have to wait.

Premium-free medicare will save most senior citizens $93 annually. $69 for the basic program and $24 for the optional package. Those senior citizens who are receiving the guaranteed income supplement now pay only $42 annually for both programs.

The premier said the cabinet considered waying premiums for only a portion of the senior citizens but rejected this option "because it would force us to maintain a means test."

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Editor,
The Western Review,
Dear Sir:

I think a lot of residents of 43rd street and 44th avenue are getting somewhat of a bad deal from our town administration. When the new subdivision was being planned and we thought of buying in this area, I approached the town secretary and the town engineer to find out when they planned to complete the sidewalks, paving, etc. We were told that our sidewalks would be installed in the spring of 1971 and the paving the following spring.

This program of course has been set back, but instead we have been offered the services of a dog catcher. I am not disputing the fact that dogs should be kept at bay by their owners, but I feel we have some unique circumstances in this area. Because our homes are quite new, few people have had opportunity to build fences to keep their dogs in. If our dog catcher must perform his duties in this area I for one would be quite willing to lay trespassing charges should he attempt to perform these duties on my private property again.

Readers wishing to write to Mr. Cantelon are invited to do so. All letters to be forwarded to Hart Cantelon Counselling Services Ltd., 1600 Cambridge Building, Edmonton. Please include a stamped self-addressed envelope to ensure a reply.

Dear Mr. Cantelon:
I am 19 years old and living at home. My Mother has this hang-up - her hang-up is sex. Whenever I have started to discuss my eventual move from home, she says something like, "and then you'll get pregnant". This has been going on for about two years now. During the last while, the problem has gotten worse. My Mother knows of quite a few girls who "had to get married, as she puts it, and fears that I will suffer the same fate. You see, in high school I was never especially popular with boys, in fact, I was terrified of them - mostly because of my Mother. Now, however, I have about four or five boyfriends whom I have known for about two years. They are only friends and I can see no romantic involvement with any of them. I appreciate their friendship, and enjoy their company. We have good times together and that is all I've told my Mother that she should have enough faith in my judgement to know that I would not do anything foolish, but she continues to talk about how I would disgrace the family, if I got in trouble and how my father wouldn't help me. She told me I should get some pills. To me, this indicates that she suspects I have been sleeping around, which I haven't, so that really hurts. How do I stop her? I have even considered not going out with the guys anymore.

Dear Hurt:
Why parents will suspect without grounds is difficult to understand. The reason really is that the adults have a hang-up about sex and not the kids. Your mother's attitude is just the kind that drives many a girl into pregnancy, rather than away from it. Your mother needs help to bring her thinking around. Have her read these brief comments and then suggest she do just that. Don't cut yourself off from your friends. This kind of relationship makes possible a mature judgement so that you don't make a mistake when you do eventually fall in love and have a home of your own.

Dear Mr. Cantelon:
I am concerned about a young husband of a very good friend of mine who passed away suddenly. Was it right for her family to have a fight, in his presence, a day before she passed away, about what he should do with her clothes gifts, etc.? Instead of helping him to have courage to get over his losing her so young, they wanted her personal belongings. I'm sure his wife would never have wanted it that way. The husband wants me to have something to remember her by, but the family is set against this. What should I do?

Dear Concerned:
This kind of a squabble sickens me. As a clergyman, I've even witnessed such fights take place at the open grave of a commital service. How human beings can be so insensitive and crass, is beyond my understanding, and at times tempts me to lose faith in humanity. What happens as to possessions of the deceased, is in the hands of her husband, of course. Any decent family wouldn't even make any suggestions unless they were asked. This kind of incident makes me more convinced that ever that there should be no estates left except to those who cannot support themselves. If the husband offers you something in memory of his beloved wife, accept it with thanks, and don't hurt him any more than he already is.

THEN: That old lamp was a beauty. Its heavy shade and frills didn't let it shed much light, but it suited the decor of yesteryear. It strained your eyes and pained your neck as you read under its low light — for a power cost of

MEALS IN MINUTES! . . . with a portable microwave oven

HOW DOES THE PORTABLE MICROWAVE OVEN WORK?
An electronic oven cooks with microwave energy. Similar to high frequency radio energy, mircowaves are transmitted, absorbed and reflected. Heat is produced when the microwaves are absorbed. Once they enter the food, the microwaves are converted to heat; consequently the food becomes hot and cooks.

WHAT TYPE OVENWARE CAN BE USED TO PREPARE FOOD IN MICROWAVE OVEN?
Materials such as glass, plastic or paper may be used since they transmit the mircowaves, allowing food to be quickly heated. Metal utensils should not be used because metal reflects the waves, thus preventing the food from heating.

ARE MICROWAVE OVENS SAFE?
Microwave ovens are equipped with built-in safety devices. Upon opening the oven door, the movement of microwaves automatically stops, so there is no danger of your coming in contact with the microwaves.

IS SPECIAL WIRING REQUIRED TO INSTALL A PORTABLE MICROWAVE OVEN?
No special wiring is required for the portable microwave oven. The unit operates on a 120 volt, 3-wire circuit. It is designed to sit on a counter top.

DOES THE PORTABLE MICROWAVE OVEN REQUIRE FREQUENT CLEANING?
Food spills and splatters do not bum on because microwaves do not heat the oven interior. The oven can be easily wiped with a damp cloth after every use.

CAN THE PORTABLE MICROWAVE OVEN COOK ALL KINDS OF FOODS?
The microwave oven does not perform all cooking chores. For instance, less tender cuts of meat require long slow simmering and should be cooked by conventional methods. Baked products such as cakes and cookies must be timed closely to prevent overcooking. As most portable microwave ovens do not have browning units, baked products will not brown. Prepared frozen foods are ideal as they can be thawed and heated in a few minutes. Leftovers and slightly stale breads and pastries can be reheated and freshened in a very short time.

IS FLAVOR LOST BY COOKING FOODS IN THE MICROWAVE OVEN?
No. Because the cooking is fast, moisture and flavor are retained. Leftovers which are reheated in the microwave are also flavorful.

DOES THE PORTABLE MICROWAVE OVEN CARRY A GUARANTEE?
Most manufacturers offer guarantees for replacing or repairing defective parts after date of origianal purchase with normal use. It is a good idea to inquire about the guarantee when purchasing a microwave oven.

HOW MUCH FASTER IS MICROWAVE COOKING THAN CONVENTIONAL COOKING?
Food preparation time remains the same but generally microwave cooking takes approximately one fourth the time required for conventional cooking. For example, a three and half pound roast is cooked in about 30 minutes.

For further information on portable microwave ovens or other electrical appliances, contact the home economists at Calgary Power, Box 1900, Calgary, Alberta.

Report From Parliament Hill

By Allen Sulatycky, M.P.

The leaders of the most powerful nations on the face of the earth must eat. The security of a country rests not with the size of her army or stock of missiles, but on whether or not she can feed her people. This is not flattery to the farmer, but fact.

We in Canada are very fortunate to have one of the most productive agricultural industries in the world. There have been many worries however, in the last years about the possible disappearance of the basic unit of this industry, the family farm.

There are thousands of small farmers in Canada today who want to stay in the business of farming, but who are trapped at the poverty level by circumstances beyond their control. Many have been forced to sell out to corporate interests and move to the cities. Many of the young people have been able to see no satisfying or profitable future on the land, and so have moved to the cities also.

If these trends continue, many more farms, and indeed, entire rural communities will be threatened. It is to check, and possibly reverse these harmful trends that a comprehensive programme to help the small farmers of Canada to build profitable family farms has been developed by the federal government.

Some farmers require additional land. Others need more capital Most, need information on how they can develop profitable production techniques, marketing systems, and management. The new programme announced recently by Agriculture Minister Olson is designed to meet these needs.

Through a new land transfer programme, farmers will more easily gain access to the additional land they require.

Through expanded credit facilities, they will gain access to the funds they require to develop a profitable farm.

Through programmes currently being worked out with the provincial departments of Agriculture, more information and services of all kinds will be available to farmers desiring assistance.

By stimulating the development of profitable farms, the federal government hopes to provide the base for thriving rural towns and villages. Nevertheless, there will be farmers who will decide to retire or quit farming.

The federal government will provide grants through the land transfer programmes to make it easier for these people to release their land to others who wish to stay and grow with Canadian agriculture. The grants will be available either as a lump sum or as a annuity.

During recent meetings between the provincial ministers of Agriculture and the federal minister, agreement was reached that this type of assistance for small farmers is urgently needed in Canada. Small farmers only will be able to benefit by the programmes, not the farmers who already own larger and more profitable farms.

A total of $150,000,000 of federal government funds have been allocated for this programme It is the intention of the department of Agriculture, however, to expand and improve the plan as advantages are realized and weaknesses eliminated in the coming months.

I believe that this programme represents a much needed first step in the right direction, that of helping the small farmers of Canada to develop the thriving, profitable farms they want, and which Canada needs.

elementary student, $12.00 per junior high student, and $.40 per credit for senior high school.

Contracts for the Deputy Superintendent, the Assistant Superintendent, and the Supervisor of Instruction were approved by the Board.

The task of preparing equipment lists and specifications for tendering and receiving the equipment for the new Evansburg High School was given to Mr. J. E.V. Keast, principal of the present high school in Evansburg.

The Board agreed to leave the old high school building at Evansburg in its present form for at least the next year. The newer portions of it will be used for junior high school students for the 1972-73 school year.

The Board received information on a division-wide school secretary-teacher-aides seminar held in Edson on November 29th, 1971. Mr. B. A. Chandler, school superintendent, who spoke on the role of teacher-aides at the conference, indicated that teacher-aides can carry out instructional tasks providing that the teacher plans, supervises, evaluates and takes full responsibility for the program. Mr. Morrill from Mount Royal College in Calgary outlined their teachers' aide program and answered various questions. In the afternoon, conducted a workshop for school secretaries while Mrs. S. McCrae, librarian at Parkland Composite, discussed library procedures with the teacher-aides.

The Board approved the purchase of 1.8 acres of land from the Town of Hinton at a purchase price of fifteen thousand dollars. The property is adjacent to the Mountain View School in Hinton, and will be a welcome addition to a very small present school site.

Other matters discussed were: approval of signing authorities, appointment of auditor, approval of minutes, Hinton library agreement, teacher resignation, and appointment, leaves of absence, bus resignation, approving a custodian for the Evansview School, approval of a substitute bus driver, future meetings and payment of accounts.

AGRICULTURAL COMMITTEE NEWS

During the year 1971, it has been a pleasure to work with the farmers of this County.

Regardless of experiencing some problems, which were easily controlled, good progress was made in reaping an average to good crop.

Your County Council, the Department of Agriculture, the newly formed Agriculture Advisory Committee and your Agriculture Committee have worked harmoniously to promote a service to assist the welfare of the farmer.

Problems can only be checked and progress achieved through the co-operation of all concerned.

To everyone, your Agricultural Fieldmen William Moelhoff and Otto Reich would like to extend "Greetings and Best Wishes for Christmas and the New Year."

REBELS DEFEAT WESTLOCK IN TWO WEEKEND GAMES

BY DOUG BARNES

This last weekend the Rebels beat Westlock Eagles twice. They had some trouble winning on Saturday night with another bad first period, but were able to improve as the game went on.

I think the Rebels are able to improve and take over most hockey games they play because they are in better shape than most clubs they play and also they have more depth this year than in the past. This of course includes goal tending.

Barry Pankewicz made the Rebels go to the bench Saturday night and bring in Rookie Jim Tucker to play goal. This occured at the 11:50 mark of the first period. Barry should have got a two minute penalty for leaving his crease to protest a referee call on brother Gary. Instead he received a game misconduct. I think it was something he said about the referee's ancestry.

Jim Tucker played well and the Eagles scored only one from here on in.

A fairly good hockey game played before the samllest crowd of the season, but there is a lot of competition this time of year.

Sam Belcourt led the Rebels again to a 4 - 3 win with two goals and one assist. 13 penalties were handed out by referee Erie Paterson, ten to the Rebels and three to Westlock.

Sunday the Rebels should have bombed the Eagles, but inspite of the goal tenders friend the goal posts and cross bars, they still came out on top 6 - 4. A little larger crowd Sunday but very quiet for Drayton Valley. The old fellow, as one of his fans call him, played one of his best games since November. Veteran Frank Novosel had a three point game and first star. This veteran centre ice man took some of us back five or six years when Frank first came to town and showed us what a centre ice man should be.

The Rebels goal-tending was good again on Sunday with Lorne Foster in the net. Westlock outshot the Rebels 31 to 30.

Only nine penalties were handed by referee Ron Panchyn. By the way Ron, you can not throw a stick at a player who is carrying the puck.

Sam Belcourt collected himself a hat-trick and a $10.00 credit note at Don McKenzies Mens Wear. Sam is on his way to another scoring championship.

Other goal scorers in the game where Frank Novosel, Art Assman and Henry Hodgson.

The next home game for the Rebels will be Tuesday night, December 21st when they host the Barrhead Chiefs. The Rebels are a good hockey club and deserve to be in first place. You should come out and see them.

On behalf of the Drayton Valley Rebels we wish you all a very Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year.

CHRISTMAS Message

As the Christmas Season again draws near, it is my pleasure, on behalf of the Council and Staff of the County of Parkland, to wish you all the best wishes of the season and our hope that 1972 may see the realization of many of your dreams and expectations.

This past year I have had the privilege of attending four church anniversaries in our County. These anniversaries ranged from 50 - 80 years, and were most enjoyable and refreshing events. As one looks back, we find those pioneers who had so little and were striving to get established in this country; still took time and found it important to worship their Lord and establish churches. This clearly indicates the foundation on which our County and Country were founded. Certainly it was a solid one and the most important one. We certainly still appreciate the role our churches serve in this County. In this age of moral decay and permissive society, I feel it is essential to our survival as a society to re-establish the foundations on which our forefathers built and serve our Lord as he would wish. What better time to re-affirm our faith, and do our part to again raise the moral standards of our society, than at this Christmas Season.

The Council and Staff of the County of Parkland would like to thank all those who helped so much to make 1971 the successful year it was. The co-operativeness and interest of our ratepayers has again been just great and is sincerely appreciated.

Once again Merry Christmas and Happy New Year to you all.

Sincerely,
Les Miller - Reeve,

CARE OF CHRISTMAS PLANTS

Maybe you will be giving or receiving a plant for Christmas. Here are a few suggestions from Alberta's supervisor of horticulture to help you keep your Christmas plants healthy and blooming for as long as possible.

Most plants, says Mr. McCalla, do best in a south window, and flowering plants need all the direct sunlight they can get. To overcome the chronic low humidity problem in most homes, he recommends putting a pan of water on a radiator or standing the flower pot in a saucer or tray of moist gravel. Although plants like fresh air, they should always be kept out of cold drafts.

Following are some specific recommendations for a few of the more popular Christmas plants.

Poinsettia -- They do quite well in a temperature of from 60° to 70° F. At these temperatures red poinsettias should keep their color for four to six weeks and white poinsettias for about eight weeks. They like direct sunlight and a moist soil. These plants cannot stand sudden temperature changes or drafts.

Chrysanthemums -- They also do well in temperatures of from 60° to 70° F., and like direct sunlight. Under these conditions and with frequent watering (about five times a week), they should bloom three to four weeks.

Cyclamens -- They do not like direct sunlight. When watering a cyclamen be sure not to let the water stand in the crowns of the plant because it will rot the flower shoots and the base of the leaf stems. At a temperature of between 60° and 70° F., the flowers will last about two weeks. At a lower temperature they will last longer.

Azaleas -- They do best in indirect lighting and should be watered frequently. The flowers last reasonably well at a temperature of between 60° and 70° F., but the ideal temperature is between 55° and 60° F. Under such conditions they will often continue to bloom from mid-winter until early spring.

Flowering Christmas Cacti -- These cacti are very sensitive to light and temperature changes. They like a night temperature of 60° F. and a daytime temperature of from 65° to 70° F. They should be watered just often enough to keep them from wilting.

Since most people's houses are warmer than recommended temperatures for these plants, the blooming period of house plants could probably be extended if they were put in a cool place, such as a basement at night.

A Christmas Message to Readers -- Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year to all.

Remember you are a child of the Universe. No less than the trees and the stars. You have a right to be here. Strive to be happy.

G. McDavid

CHRISTMAS MESSAGES FROM THE CLERGY

Christmas is Wonderful

It is a wonderful fact that of all the notable, powerful, and influential leaders of the last 2,000 years the birthday of only one has escaped oblivion. The birth of the Christ Child still brings deepest joy to peoples all over the world, and in this we rejoice.

The story of that birth is wonderful and is known, repeated, and listened to with awe by young and old alike - the journey to Bethlehem, the inn with no room to spare, the lowly stable, angels singing, shepherds and wise men with their adoration and gifts. So much art, poetry and music has been inspired by the wonder of the Christmas story which goes on and on, century after century, and continues into eternity.

And Christmas is wonderful because of the contrasts. The contrast of Christmas is darkness versus light. Coming as it does in the dark of the year and symbol of Christmas might well be a candle burning in the darkness of night. Which would be the more significant, the darkness or the candle? Christ was a light shining in the darkness and the darkness could not blot it out.

The contrast of Christmas is hatred versus love. From Herod on to those who crucified Him, Jesus was constantly beset by hate but He became the personification of love, with the love of God in every thought and deed.

No matter how dark, how hateful, the day may be - here in the Christ Child is the true light and love of the world.

And Christmas is wonderful because of the hope which was kindled by the expectation of the coming of One who was named "Prince of Peace." And when He came the song was heard, "Peace on earth; good will toward men." To this day the hope of peace is found in the hearts of good men and it is wonderful that at Christmas we still keep singing our songs of hope.

May love and peace be with all people as we celebrate this wonderful Christmas, the birthday of our Lord.

Rev. Bert McQuaid,
All Saints' Anglican Church

Christmas Story Brings Home Truth Of Christ's Being Son of God

Christmas is one of the most wonderful seasons of the year, when we celebrate again the birth of Christ. The account of His wondrous brith and all the supernatural things that took place with it, bring home to us the great and fundamental truth, that Jesus is the Son of God. Without this truth, that Christ is divine religion becomes a mere form rather a living reality. Let us note again of these supernatural things.

The Virgin birth: Matt. 1:18 - "Now the birth of Jesus was on this wise; When as His mother Mary was espoused to Joseph, before they came together, she was found to be with child of the Holy Ghost." Verse 21 of the same chapter we have the Angels message to Joseph. "And she shall bring forth a son, and thou shall call his name JESUS, for he shall save his people from their sins." The great truth of the Virgin birth, which is essential to the divinity of Christ, is clearly shown here.

The birth in Bethlehem: Mary and Joseph lived in Nazareth, but Christ was born in Bethlehem, in fulfillment of prophecy. The trip to Bethlehem at this particular time was prompted by the decree of the Roman Emperor, Caesar Augustus. We see God using a heathern Emperor to accomplish His purpose. Daniel, in speaking of Nebuchudnezzar, king of Babylon, years before this time, interpreted a dream which pronounced judgment on the king and said it was "til he should know that the Most High rules in the kingdom of men." God uses many men and women in this world to accomplish his purpose and here He uses a heathen king Caesar Augustus.

Going on we have the Announcement of His birth by the angels to the shepherds on the Bethlehem hills, and their visit to the manger. Then there was the coming of the wise men guided for many miles by the star; their gifts and their worship. The angel then came with the message to Joseph to flee to Egypt from the wrath of Herod. All these incidents and others, bring to us afresh the truth that Christ is the divine Son of God.

At this Christmas season may we realize in a greater way than ever before that Christ is the divine Son of God, and celebrate his birth in keeping with His person.

VERDICT ON STOLEN TREE

Every year an increasing number of trees are stolen from private and public lands in Alberta. However, it looks as though this offence is going to be taken more seriously in the future if the sentence handed down at the court in Fort Saskatchewan is anything to go by.

The case involved a man who was caught stealing a Colorado spruce from the provincial tree nursery at Oliver last Christmas. When his case came up before the Fort Saskatchewan magistrate's court this spring, the man pleaded guilty. The judge sentenced him to three months probation and ordered him to made restitution in the amount of $150 within the three-month probation period.

P. D. McCalla, head of the Alberta horticultural branch, commenting on the sentence, said that he was glad to see that the courts are putting a value on stolen trees. He pointed out that if any other private property of equal value were stolen, they would not hesitate to impose a suitable sentence, but that this has not always been the case in the past with trees. Many of the trees stolen each year are worth anywhere from $100 to $500 each he says.

Mr. McCalla reports that although some trees are dug up for landscaping, most are taken at Christmas time. He feels that most of the people who go to the country to get their Christmas tree, do not set out to steal, but are looking for an excuse to give their children an outing. Probably they went with their fathers to cut down the family Christmas tree when they were young. Nevertheless, when it comes right down to it, they are stealing, and rural residents are becoming increasingly resentful about this annual raid on their evergreen trees. Not a few have said, "how would city people like it if we went and helped ourselves to one of their trees." Although the location is different, the principle is the same.

In a more "constructive" vein now, winter is also an ideal time to thin out overcrowded farmstead shelterbelts. The trees are in a dormant state and the absence of foliage makes tree removal much easier than during the growing season.

Herman Oosterhuis, in charge of the Alberta department of agriculture's tree planting programs, reports that the trees in many established farm shelterbelts suffer from overcrowding. Either trees of the same variety have been planted too closely together in the same row or fast-growing varieties such as poplars and willows, are suppressing the growth of adjacent rows of evergreens.

To alleviate overcrowding in multiple-row shelterbelts, Mr. Oosterhuis says it may be necessary to take out one, two or three rows of trees, depending upon the number of rows in the shelterbelt and the degree of overcrowding. When a row of trees are taken out, they should be cut off at ground level. If you do not want to remove the trees from the shelterbelt, cut the branches and the trunks up and make sure that each piece of wood is lying flat on the ground. Wood that is in contact with the ground will decay quite rapidly.

When trees in the same row have been planted too closely together (e.g. poplars at six foot spacings or willows and spruce at four foot spacings), Mr. Oosterhuis recommends removing every other tree. The empty space that is left will soon be filled in by new branches on the remaining trees. These will grow more vigorously with less competition for plant nutrients and moisture.

Mr. Oosterhuis suggests the following as a guide for determining the minimum space required by mature shelterbelt trees. Poplars, willows and elms need 200 square feet or 10' x 20' spacings. Evergreens, ash and maple require 100 square feet or 10' x 10' spacings.

If fast-growing deciduous trees (those which shed their leaves in the fall) interfere with the growth of adjacent rows of evergreens, gradually prune back the branches of the deciduous trees. Too little space between the rows of deciduous trees and evergreens will result in the growth of the latter being suppressed. What happens, says Mr. Oosterhuis, is that the fast-growing varieties gradually crowd out the slower-growing evergreens to the point where the evergreens will die.

Although it is up to the farmer to decide which type of tree he wants to preserve, it is logical to promote the growth and survival of the variety which provides year-round wind protection and which will last the longest. This, of course, is the evergreen, regardless of whether it is a spruce or a pine. In severe cases of evergreen growth suppression, it may even be necessary to completely remove an adjacent row of deciduous trees to create a favorable growing site. Since evergreens, particularly spruce, have a tremendous ability to put on new growth when released from overcrowded conditions, this procedure will give new life and vigor to the shelterbelt.

OFFICE CANCELLED DURING DEC., JAN.

Due to the fact our services are not being used to the fullest in certain time periods of the year, and in an effort to reduce travel expenses in line with budget restrictions, we will not be at the Drayton Valley Auction Mart for the balance of December and January. However, we will be available for farm calls.

To Attend Convention

More than thirty-five Jehovah's Witnesses and interested persons are expected to motor to Edmonton on December 24th for a three day convention scheduled to be held in the Ross Sheppard Composite High School.

The Drayton Valley congregation is one of 14 which will be represented at the convention. A combined attendance of approximately 1300 persons will come from various centres such as Hinton, Edson, Whitecourt, and Barrhead.

Mr. Ken Hayhurst stated that the theme of the convention is taken from 1 Thessalonians 4:1, 10 which admonishes Christians to retain good relations with their God, Jehovah, through proper conduct and to do this more fully.

Two local residents will be assisting directly in the administration of the convention, Mr. Hayhurst will be working in the Volunteer Service Department and will also serve as Chairman for the main event of the convention, and Mr. Lee Hanson will be serving in the Cleaning Department.

SUPERINTENDENT'S DESK

SEASONS GREETINGS

Christmas is fast approaching, and all of us are looking forward to the many, festivities and religious celebrations associated with Christ's birthday. Members of the education staff at the County office join with me in wishing you all the joys and blessings of this Holy Christmas season. May the new year bring increasing happiness in your lives, and may 1972 be marked by greater love and peace, both at home and in the global community in which we live today.

MODIFIED SCHOOL YEAR PROPOSALS

There is considerable discussion these days about changing the school year as we presently know it. A number of suggestions have been advanced, each having certain advantages over the present school year. Some of these are:

a) Semestering -- involves the dividing of the traditional year into equal parts. The most common type of semestering in the province is the division of the traditional school year into two equal parts. The first semester extends from the beginning of September until approximately the end of January. The second semester starts at the beginning of February and lasts until the end of June.

b) The divided school year -- is basically a semester-type organization which uses the Christmas holidays as the break period between the approximately equal instructional periods. The divided school year does provide a number of educational advantages among them we might cite the following:

1. Final matriculation examinations are completed prior to the Christmas break.

2. Entry into post-secondary institutions would be facilitated by having the break at the Christmas period.

c) The true quarter system -- provides for the continuous operation of schools on the basis of four equal quarters of approximately sixty days' school attendance per quarter. The A.T.A. proposes a modified quarter system in which the fall quarter would commence late in September and end at the Christmas holidays break. The winter quarter would extend from the first full week in January to the end of March with a spring quarter extending from the first of April to the end of June. A summer quarter would be provided during the months of July, August, and September.

If your community is interested in hearing more about one of these ideas for the County schools, we are prepared to attend community meetings and provide much more detail than is possible through this news column. Please call or write the Superintendent's office if you are interested.

A.S.T.A. CONVENTION 1971

A large number of important resolutions were endorsed by the Alberta School Trustees' Convention recently. These now become a part of Association policy, and will be presented to the Minister of Education as recommendations to change existing legislation. All resolutions sponsored by the County of Parkland were carried by a majority of the convention delegates. One of them dealt with the preparation of teachers. It was resolved that the A.S.T.A. seek the support of the universities in Alberta, the Department of Education, and the Alberta Teachers' Association in providing more adequate programs than the present practice teaching programs for student teachers by the inclusion of a one-year period of internship as part of the degree requirement and, further, that the period of internship be served prior to the initial teacher certification.

Present practice teaching programs at Alberta universities should be replaced by an extended period of internship. Such internship prior to completion of "theory" courses would help strengthen teacher preparation and provide much more opportunity to develop professional skills before teaching ability is evaluated.

Students who are not likely to become effective teachers could be better identified through an internship program served before initial certification.

A resolution regarding Farmer's Day carried by the delegate read as follows:

Be it resolved that the Alberta School Trustees' Association request the Government of Alberta to change the designated date of the declared holiday, namely, "Farmer's Day", from the second Friday in June to the first Monday in August.

It was suggested that the second Friday in June seriously conflicts with preparations for final examinations and, for this reason, it was asked that a more suitable day be designated as "Farmer's Day".

Other approved resolutions dealt with curriculum and instruction, educational finance, teachers, and school board operation. Any interested citizen may acquir a copy of all resolutions by contacting the County office.

Oldest Holiday Custom

Good luck's assumed to "settle" on those who dance in the New Year

SIGNIFICANTLY, the word carol is traced to an old term for round-dance, such as took place publicly on festive occasions. The early Christian Church forbade carol-singing because of its pagan origin. The Druid name for Stonehenge was Carol. Early Britons sang and danced while Druid priests cut the mistletoe.

In Europe, during the Middle Ages and Renaissance, it remained a popular belief that amicable relationships between persons and good luck would be "settled" on those who danced the old year out and the new year in. Consequently, at hamlets, villages, towns, in France, Germany, Netherlands there were public balls New Year's Eve.

The following afternoon, with callers making the rounds of homes with gifts and cheery greetings, there was dancing both at inn courtyards and homes. Country-folk walked or rode to a crossroads or larger places to watch the dancers or join them in an atmosphere like a street fair.

On such occasions field workers, house servants, or apprentices, exercised a traditional right to be partners with lords and ladies, masters and mistresses, in the dance movements. Even royalty recognized this custom. Ye Virgin Queen Elizabeth I was known as an avid dancer on all occasions, including at Yule celebrations, with servants, until well into her sixties. It was stated that when 66, she was moved by curiosity to retire to private quarters and practise with a favorite courtier a dance introduced at Court from Spain.

Professor George Saintsbury said religious carols really date from the 15th and 16th centuries, for then "minds of men were beginning to be freed from the old period when the church had suppressed the dance, and the drama, denounced communal singing, and warred against the tendency of the people to disport themselves in church on the festivals." At this period, there was a distinct growth in the democratic spirit of music, dance and drama.

THE reimposition of restrictions on these during Oliver Cromwell's Puritan theology in Old England was reflected in New England for some decades. Pilgrim fathers at Plymouth took forceful action against Thomas Morton for setting up a 'May-pole' where Quincy is now, for Morris-dancing by Pilgrim and Indian youth. Under orders, Captain Myles Standish shipped Morton back to England.

Elsewhere in the American Colonies, dancing continued unhampered. The elite had "assembled" at plantation mansions, plain folk danced at inns or in barns. Edward Eggleston noted, not with favor, "The savages themselves were not more fond of dancing than the colonists who came after them."

The dancing-master was expected to teach his pupils the social graces as well as the steps of the popular communal dances. "To the colonists and, later, the citizens of the young republic, such instruction was deemed of great value in convincing Europeans that Americans were not untutored, uncouth barbarians," says Encyclopedia Britannica's authority on terpsichore.

Among eminent fathers of the American nation, George Washington and Thomas Jefferson were particularly fond of dancing. Of a year-end festivity in 1763, Jefferson wrote a friend, ". . . . last night, I was as merry as agreeable company and dancing with Belinda could make me . . ."

The accompaniment for dancing was not confined to the fiddle in Virginia, for the musical instruments brought by the slaves from Africa had been found to add to enjoyment. A letter referring to festivities at a plantation around New Year 1774 said, "A great number of young people met with a fiddle and banjo played by two Negroes, with plenty of toddy." (The banjo originated as a calabash, or gourd.)

Carols Express Yule Joy, Echoing Across the Ages

Voices rise in songs of joy and praise. As the joyous season arrives, the vibrant sound of carolers is heard in churches, at family gatherings, in groups going from house to house to celebrate with song.

Carols are as much a part of the Yuletide as the tree, gifts and Santa himself.

It all began with the first carols in the 13th century, says the Encyclopedia Americana.

The earliest English carols were composed anonymously, perhaps by clergymen or court musicians. Simple tunes and strong rhythms were characteristic, and the musical form featured a refrain, to repeat before and after each stanza.

Words were written, generally, in the English vernacular or in "macaronic" form — a combination of English and Latin.

The first printed collection of carols appeared in 1521. It included the "Boar's Head Carol," still sung during Christmas dinner at Queen's College, Oxford, England.

Even then, however, the practice of passing on carols orally, from generation to generation, continued. Among these were carols in ballad form, such as "I Saw Three Ships" and "The Cherry Tree Carol."

Caroling fell into disrepute in the 17th century, and carol singing was forbidden by the English Puritans. Those who colonized America carried this disapproval.

After the Restoration, in 1660, caroling was once again permitted and the custom slowly revived.

Some of the most popular carols date from the 18th and 19th centuries. These include "Adeste Fideles," possibly by Francis Wade; "Hark! The Herald Angels Sing," with words by Charles Wesley and music by Felix Mendelssohn; "Joy to the World," with words by Isaac Watts, music by George Frederic Handel.

Probably the most popular of all carols is the 19th century "Silent Night," with words by Joseph Mohr, the village priest of Hallein, Austria.

Many stories are told about the way this carol came to be written. One legend says that on a snowy Christmas Eve in 1818, Father Mohr went to bless the newborn baby of a poor parishioner.

On that night he was so inspired by the beauty of the mother and child that he wrote the poem "Silent Night."

As He brought us Peace, may this holiday bring hope for all mankind. We wish you a Christmas of serene joy.

CHRISTMAS Message

I like the ancient Hebrew greeting: "Peace Be With You". It is especially appropriate at this season when we normally hear a lot about Peace on Earth, Good Will to Men. Sometimes, I fear, we talk about Peace on Earth without thinking seriously about it.

Christmas is a time for good eating and good fellowship. It should be a time for good and benevolent thinking as well, perhaps on that theme of Peace on Earth. Commonly we assume that peace among men is the highest goal. I believe there is a better one, like a Peace on Earth that means what it says. I suggest that it should be in every human heart at Christmas and at all seasons to aim at living in peace with all the components of the good earth.

The Old Testament character, Isaiah, is one of my favorites. I suppose he did not expect to see the fulfillment of his dream; but I admire his vision of a world community in which, in his words -- "They will neither hurt nor destroy in all my Holly Mountain." He was thinking of the real peace on earth; with mankind living in harmony with his surroundings instead of being at war with Nature for his own gain. I believe the person who deeply desires Peace on Earth will work and conserve his soil and forest; he will have concern for wild creatures as well as for humans; he will try to protect the precious resources of air and water from contamination; he will brag more about the oil and gas he is leaving in the earth for his grand children than the volumes of non-renewable oil and gas he is extracting hurriedly and burning; he will take a picture of a deer instead of shooting it; he will pick up broken glass rather than add to it; he will throw some crumbs or seeds for the birds. Men have talked a lot about Peace on Earth; lets talk and think about it as something which would place humans in the benevolent role of stewards in the Great Garden of the Earth. What a wonderful challenge that would offer!

At this Christmas season and for many Christamses to come, May Peace Be With You.

Grant MacEwan,
Lieutenant-Governor of Alberta.

CHRISTMAS MESSAGES FROM THE CLERGY

The Way to the Stable

Have you ever wondered why so few people seemed to be aware of what took place at Bethlehem on that first Christmas? Have you ever thought it strange that there were so few visitors? The only record we have is the reference to the shepherds and the wise men. What about the crowded inn only a few yards away? What about the innkeeper, his family, his servants? Apparently they were too busy with other things. It is significant that so few people took the trouble to meet the Christ Child. Could we miss Him too? There are certain essential qualities needed for people of all generations to view with understanding the birth of Christ. I should like to share a few with you.

It takes simplicity -- The shepherds were men who did not find it necessary to make a production of whatever they undertook. There fore the outward simplicity of the stable was not a stumbling block to them. They were interested in the Person they had come to see, not in the size of the house or the make of his clothes. They also had an inner simplicity. Most of us are too busy with ourselves, concocting schemes, making plans, fighting fears, that we simply haven't time for the stable The crowded town of Bethlehem was full of those people. Only those find their way to the stable who choose the way of simplicity.

The second quality is acceptance -- We can be certain that both the shepherds and the wisemen were expecting a different style of King when the Messiah came. Their traditional concepts were certainly shaken when they were led to a hovel and beheld two peasants with a small infant. He couldn't have seemed much like a King. Yet they bowed down before Him. Because their minds and hearts were receptive to things new and different they were able to acknowledge Him. Only those find their way to the stable who choose the way of acceptance.

A third quality is the capacity to adore -- Adoration is a word that we seldom use anymore, perhaps because so few of us adore. Adoration is a combination of love and worship, and it is something that we reserve for God. There is nothing partial or reserved or moderate or reasonable about adoration - it is giving of one's entire being. Could one reson why we have such trouble with adoration be that we have made a god of mediocrity. The price we pay when we serve that god is the loss of our capacity to adore. The god of mediocrity would be embarrassed at anything as extreme as adoration. Yet, only those find their way to the stable who choose the way of adoration.

The final quality is joy -- because the shepherds had felt the contagious job of the angels they were moved to see for themselves. The joy that they discovered is a joy that is not dependent upon the circumstances of life Here they were in a cold, crude stable (is that where you would choose to spend Christmas Eve?). There was pain and there was want. But there was also a deep, abiding joy, for God was in their midst; and where He is, there is joy. Whenever people recognize their Savior and bow down to Him they discover again "the good tidings of great joy." Only those find their way to the stable who choose the way of joy.

Christ Came to Reveal God

At this time of the year, when men's thoughts turn to the coming into the world of the Lord Jesus Christ, it is well for those who know and love Him to recall clearly just why our Saviour came to earth. What is the true significance of His birthday we celebrate at this season of the year? We know, of course, that He lived before He was born; that by His birth we mean the beginning of His appearance in human form.

Hundreds of years before the Incarnation, the Holy Spirit drew portraits of the coming Messiah, the Christ of God. And these inspired word pictures, preserved for us in the word of God, emphasize the purpose of Christ's birth according to the flesh.

"No man hath seen God at any time; the only begotten Son, which is in the bosom of the Father, he hath declared him" (John 1:18) In Old Testament days, men knew something of God. The psalmist speaks of the heavens as declaring the glory of God and of the firmament as showing His handiwork. But there is more to be known of God than can be grasped through this revelation in nature. And Jesus, as He walked among men, brought that fuller understanding. He said, in effect: "I am God uncovered; I am God unveiled." If one would know who God is, and understand something of His nature and work, he must study the four Gospels, for therein is Jesus Christ, God's only begotten Son, revealed as Immanuel, "God with us."

In the days of His Flesh, Jesus could point to Himself and say, "He that hath seen me hath seen the Father." If we want to know what God is like all that we have to do is to study the words, works, and ways of His Son.

Let this truth, then, be uppermost in our minds at the Christmas season, namely, that Christ came as the culmination of the revelation of the Father. The very word incarnation means to embody in flesh. Christ, then, by His birth became God manifest in the flesh. And it will not be forgotten that Jesus not only revealed and reflected God: He was God.

Strange though it may seem, Christ did not only come to reveal God but also to die. He turned aside from the ivory palaces to die as the Sinless Substitute for Sinners. He came to save from sin. Has He saved you? Born in Bethlehem's manger, has He been born within your heart?

Christmas Eve at Grizzly Gulch

The tinkling of a piano made all manner of men feel alike

THE UPRIGHT piano stood there stolidly unaffected by clomping feet that made the slab floor vibrate and drinks on tables jiggle. The piano and the decorations put up for the occasion made Goskin's different from any other drinking and gambling place around Grizzly Gulch that Christmas 1858. Buck Callahan recalled this to me.

Goskin had had a wagon-load of greenery brought in from along a creek where his customers could look at it all day if they hadn't been intent on cradling gold dust from silt. Sprigs of mountain cedar and of a shrub with red berries (that made it suggest holly) hung over the couple of mirrors Goskin had behind the bar. The mirrors reflected flickers of candles Goskin had stuck into whisky jugs for further effect.

All that was wanting to fill the cup of Goskin's yearnings was anybody who'd pick out something on the piano recognizable as a song, like maybe The Old Familiar Place. The fiddler who was scratching a tune, and beating time with his foot, for the shuffling, giggling, guffawing throng between the bar and gaming tables grated on Goskin's sentimental feelings.

"Christmas Eve and no pianner-pounder," he said to himself.

"This is no place for a Christian to be in." Goskin gave no thought to the resemblance of a gold rush mining-camp to a Tower of Babel, with people of all faiths, including atheism, from around the world.

Taking down a U.S. marshal's Wanted for Robbery placard, Goskin turned it over and scrawled heavily in pencil:

100 Dollars in Dust
To a Compitant Pianner Player.

He centered this on the instrument's music-rack and watched hopefully for it to catch an eye.

SOUNDS from the throng had drowned out mourning of wind at loose doors and windows. Then one door had to be forced shut after a solitary man crept in, rubbing snow from his face, and stood stark still until he could see a chunk-stove. Moving toward it, he hunched down without a look at anything else and held trembling hands toward the warmth. In a minute or two, he uncurled wrappings around his head, to uncover damp, long, grey hair. Glints of fire from the stove showed eyes with a gaunt, almost crazed expression.

The old man's presence so affected those who saw him that, contagiously, sounds of revelry hushed. It was as if a waif gnome had brought in chilling reminders of the cold, the gloom, the loneliness, awaiting them outside.

Goskin, his attention caught by the startling quiet, studied the newcomer and considered the effect. Motioning to a bartender for a cup of eggnog from a bowl upon a warmer, he advanced and remarked cheerily:

"Here, stranger, brace up! This is real smooth stuff for an empty belly."

THE crouching figure drained the cup placed in his hands without looking at his benefactor.

"Been prospecting, eh? Out in the mountains — caught in the storm? Lively night this!"

"Pretty bad," said the man, rising and steadying himself.

"Must feel pretty dry?"

The man looked at his sodden clothes and slowly grinned at the humor of Goskin's remark.

"How long out?"

"Four days."

Goskin pointed to what was laid out at an end of the bar, and said, hospitably, "Hungry?"

The man rose up, and walking over, grasped cuts of roast bear and bread, devouring them like a wild animal. Then, as meat and drink and warmth filled him, the stranger's features lost their ghostly pallor. With the change, people about him threw off depression and grew more hilarious than before.

Presently the stranger's eye fell upon the piano.

"Where's the player?" he asked. Apparently, he could not read Goskin's lettering.

"Got none," said Goskin.

"Used to play when I was young."

Goskin gleamed and grasped at the stranger's arm, supportingly.

"STRANGER, do tackle it, and give us a tune! Nary a man in this camp has wrestled with that pianner." His pulse beat faster, for he feared the man would refuse.

"I'll do the best I can," was the old man's response, as he took a seat, and fingered the keys two at a time. In a minute or so a hush came over the room again.

The sound from the piano was so unusual that even the faro-dealer, who was about to rake in a fifty-dollar bet, paused. At the next table cards were left unshuffled. Men set down drinks.

The old man brushed back his long, white locks, looked up to the ceiling, half closed his eyes, and in a kind of reverie poked an improvisation. Stiffness left his fingers and he gained confidence. The instrument was out of tune, but his audience did not detect anything radically wrong. A spell was laid upon the listeners as the player roved deftly through old ballads. As the strains flowed through their consciousness, homes of long ago arose before them; they were inhaling again apple blossoms that sank through soft air upon violets in the green turf of New England; they saw glories of the Wisconsin maples and the haze of the Indian summer blending together; they played amongst heather of the Scottish hills, the white cliffs of Britain, and heard the sullen-roar of the sea as it beat upon Scandinavian shores.

THEN came old hymns and carols, such as they had sung or heard at worship; subtle music that brought up glimmers of wax tapers, altars, images. There were no sounds now except those from the piano until a man turned away, head bent, in uncontrollable sobs. No one looked at him. Instead, one after the other moved off from the pianist, to wrap themselves for going outside. There was no more revelry left in the audience.

At daybreak every man had left the place, except Goskin and the man whose head rested against the piano, asleep. Goskin had carefully weighed $100 in gold dust for the leather bag he stuffed into a pocket of the old man, before sitting down to write his first letter home in five years.

"It cost five dollars o' dust to get a letter to Frisco for mail," Buck Callahan reminded me. "Next man going to Frisco had a couple of dozen or more, I'd guess."

NOTE: This story was discovered in an old scrapbook, with neither the name of the author nor source of the clipping indicated. Other material in the scrapbook indicated publication in 1870s.

The sound from the piano was so unusual that even the faro-dealer, who was about to rake in a $50 bet, paused.

CHRISTMAS MESSAGES FROM THE CLERGY

The Peace of Christmas

The Christmas season is rich with family traditions and customs, coupled with pleasant memories and wholesome activities for all of us. We approach this crowning day of each year with a great sense of anticipation and expectancy of seeing old friends, of sharing around the tree, of singing familiar carols and having our hearts set aglow by the beauty of all that is associated with the day. This day, and all the warm and gracious attitudes it kindles in the hearts of men, speaks to us in very plain language of man's deep desire to live at peace and in harmony one with the other. Bitterness, anger, resentment and jealousy have no part in the spirit that pervades the mind of man at Christmas. At Christmas we see no class difference, no social strata, no preference being made between men that so often is the case at other times during the year. At Christmas we find men extending themselves to help and bring relief to others less fortunate than themselves. We see men going the second mile to encourage and lift the spirits of others who especially need that kind of help. All this, at Christmas.

But, because we see these good and sincere expressions of concern coming in a rather seasonal kind of a way, we must of necessity, ask why. If Christmas has no more significance than giving opportunity for men to express concern one for another, no matter how noble the help, it has little lasting value But, as we look into the deeper significance of Christmas, we find that it's fuller meaning does not do away with man's charity or man's good will one toward the other, but it gives these expressions roots and soil within which to grow.

The promise given by God, to all men everywhere, was that there would be "a child born, and a son given, whose name would be called Wonderful, Counsellor, the Mighty God, the Everlasting Father, the Prince of Peace." (Isaiah the prophet, chap. 9:6). In these characteristics of Jesus Christ we see the deeper significance of Christmas.

1. Christmas conveys to men a sense of wonder, or full wonder, as the text says, the wonder that God would break in upon the history of man in such a humble way, bringing a new revelation of His infinite love.

2. Christmas conveys to us, in the person of Jesus Christ, the depth of concern in the heart of God for man, Jesus is called Counsellor, became man in order that he could understand the way man felt. He knows us because he was one of us.

3. Christmas conveys to us, in Christ, the message of peace, that we see reflected in men's hearts at least once a year. He is called the Prince of Peace, the author of peace, the way and the means to peace. Thus we hear the angels song at Christmas, "Glory to God in the highest, and on earth, peace, to men of good will." Jesus Christ, because He is the Prince of Peace, then becomes the giver of Peace.

As we approach this Christmas season we do not have to look too far in our world to see that this high ideal is not being experienced. Men are not at peace with one another because they are not at peace in their own selves. When we are prone to scoff at the fuller meaning of Christmas in seeing Christmas as the Prince of Peace, we would do well to ask ourselves if the Prince of peace rules in our hearts.

The peace of Christmas is a heart attitude toward God as he has revealed His love in Jesus Christ. When this fact is accepted into the person's heart by faith, then peace will rule. Certainly, that first Christmas morning found very little peace in the nation of Israel, yet this did not change the reality of the coming of the Prince of Peace. He came to bring Peace, first to the human heart and then to the world.

May this Christmas season find you being able to express with true sincerity, all the joys and kindnesses toward family and friends because the fuller peace of Christmas has laid hold upon your life.

Roger McClelland,
Calvary Baptist Church

What Christmas Means

Dear Friends in and
and around Drayton Valley,

Here we are again entering into the Christmas Season all of us have found ourselves running out of time, rushing back and forth, going to this gathering and that party. We are making plans and looking forward to opening gifts. There are menus to prepare and last minute things to buy, in all of our prepareing have we forgotten the real meaning of Christmas. Is there real joy in your planning or are we must going through a form that we usually go through every year. Stop for just a minute and consider if this were a birthday party for one of the members of your family who would the honored guest be? Silly question, of course it was, the honored guest would have to be the person whose birthday was being celebrated. What then is Christmas? The first Christmas began with the birth of a tiny baby therefore Christmas is really Christ's birthday. Is our honored guest lost among the tinsel and just where does Santa Claus fit in?

To get the most out of Christmas, one must get back of the day, back of Bethlehem, back of the story of Christ's birth, back of Mary and Joseph, back of the Shepherds and the wise men, back of the angels announcing Christ's birth, and even back of the Babe in the manager, and see God's love -- His great love for the World including you and me.

With seasons wishes,
(Mrs.) Kenneth Smith.

CHRISTMAS Message

As Christmas approaches thoughts of the majority usually turn, at least partially to the enternal saying, "Peace on Earth, Good-will to Men" and one wonders if with all the turmoil in the world it will ever come to pass.

As speaking on behalf of the Fire Department we wish each one of you this Christmas that some "Good Will" may come your way.

Let me leave a few pointers with you to guard your home from a fire hazard this Christmas so you may enjoy it.

1. Water your Christmas tree if it is natural, it will last longer, and will not become dry and combustable to your tree lights.
2. When installing your tree lights make sure you do not hide a lamp in a clump of the tree limb, get them out in the open.
3. When running extension cords to your tree light, do not go under your living room rug.
4. If you go out for a visit unplug your tree lights.
5. Your outside lighting make sure they are mounted so the bulb will not touch the wooden frame work of your home.
6. Make sure your extension cords are run properly and do not over fuse your electrical panel to keep your outside lights on.
7. Be careful at your Christmas parties make sure that all the little fires are out at the end of the evening before they turn into big ones during the middle of the night.

We wish for you everything that you wish for yourselves and may God grant you much health and happiness this Christmas and the New Years.

Elmer L. Madsen,
Fire Chief.

Oil Wives Enjoy Christmas Party

The regular meeting of the Drayton Valley Oil Wives was held in the Cardium Room on Monday, December 13th with 98 members and 18 guests present. Members enjoyed wine with the traditional turkey and all the trimmings and a festive air hung over all.

After supper Mr. Pierce (who is the music teacher at Frank Maddock High School) and some members of his high school choir entertained with a variety of Christmas songs which were thoroughly enjoyed by all.

The only new business brought forward was the February dance which everyone was in favor of so Mae Barker is going ahead with plans. A box of chocolates was presented to Mrs. Nagy for the Cardium staff, compliments of Oil Wives.

After the meeting was adjourned Lorraine Custance had the draw made for the raffle and Myrna Townsend was the lucky winner. We were then entertained by the Drayton Valley Entertainers after which the gift exchange was held.

Oil Wives would like to thank Teddy for his Christmas treat to the club and also a special thanks to Slim White.

The evening closed with coffee and dainties compliments of the executive. Next general meeting will be January 10th and the executive meeting will be on January 4th at the home of Val Swendseid.

SAFE DRIVING FOR THE HOLIDAY SEASON

Perhaps the greatest gift that you can give during the Christmas season is to give somebody the "right of way"! Giving up your "right of way" is in essence trying to understand the other driver's needs and the pressures which may be upon him. How about putting willingness to give up your "right of way" at the top of your Christmas list this year -- The Canada Safety Council.

In Scandinavia

The Jultomten is a friendly gnome, who not only brings gifts to Scandinavian children but guards the household and farm as well. To keep him happy, the children give the cattle extra fodder and leave sheaves of grain for the birds on Christmas Eve.

PREVENTING FIRE DURING THE HOLIDAY SEASON

Safety is the best gift you can give your family at Christmas time. Every year, this season is spoiled for many by accidents that could have been prevented. One of the most common is fire.

A dry Christmas tree in your house is inviting trouble. Always put your tree in a container of water and make sure that it is well away from a fireplace, radiator, stove, TV set or any other source of heat.

Check all your tree lighting equipment to make sure there are no frayed wires, cracked or brittle installations, broken bulb sockets or damaged plugs. Discard lighting sets that have deteriorated.

According to the Alberta Safety Council, Christmas tree lights should bear the certification mark of the Canadian Standards Association Testing Laboratories, whic is a large "C" enclosing the letters S. and A.

Never use electrical tree lights on a metal Christmas tree. A defective wire could result in a severe shock and burns.

The Alberta Safety Council advises home owners who are planning extensive holiday lighting for their homes to engage a competent electrician.

The splendor of the shining star reminds us of the glories of that first Christmas night, making our hopes brighter.

Agriculture Department Increase Market Emphasis

Premier Peter Lougheed announced last week that the Alberta Department of Agriculture is being reorganized to increase the emphasis on marketing, development of the family farm and expanded production to meet world demands.

The department will be organized into three general areas - marketing, production, and farm and rural resource development. Each area will be headed by an assistant deputy minister to permit greater co-ordination within and between governments. A policy and planning group will be established to provide a link with farm organizations and other sectors of the agriculture industry to improve communication, identify priorities and develop policy.

Agriculture Minister Hugh Horner says marketing is the key to expanding the agricultural industry increasing farm income and revitalizing rural communities. Recent studies indicate that the economic activity generated by agriculture in three to four times the value of its primary production and that up to 65 per cent of the gross economic activity of the province is generated or affected significantly be agriculture

The maketing group will work with other federal, provincial and private agencies to expand sales at home and abroad. It will also work on policies that will enable the groups to take a more active role in marketing, to see that more products are processed and packaged in Alberta and to develop new products.

The farm and rural resource development group will consolidate the department's credit agencies into a family farm development division to enable young and low income farmers to develop suitable family farms. It will also include municipal relations, crop insurance, agricultural engineering, the co-operative activities branch, formerly in the Department of Industry and Tourism, the right to entry branch formerly in the Department of Mines and Minerals, and rural electrification associations. Tied in with the existing extension division, this group will attempt to improve farm net income by reducing farm input costs, encourage the development of rural secondary industries and enable Albertan's to develop workable farm units.

The production group will include the existing animal industry, plant industry and veterinary services divisions plus an irrigation division which will be headquartered in Lethbridge. Most of the irrigation division has been administered by the water resources division in the Department of the Environment.

Dr. Horner notes that expanding production is the main method of increasing gross farm income. To be profitable it will have to be skillfully co-ordinated with marke ing and farm development plans and with the co-operation of industry and other government a agencies.

Work on the reorganization is already underway. The Cabinet has approved an immediate shift in the program emphasis.

Clippers Lose To Carstairs

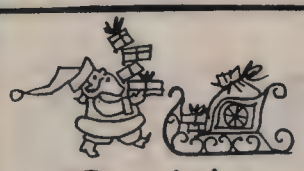
Drayton Valley Clippers completed their pre-Christmas schedule with 4 - 3 loss to Carstairs on Sunday. Although the team played excellent hockey, a few key mistakes and uncontrollable circumstances led to their second defeat of the year.

The Clipper goals were evenly divided among Craig Featherstone, Dean Samis and Bruce Hutton.

In preparation for next weeks Christmas tournament in B. C. a possible exhibition game is to be called with Red Deer on December 26th, Sunday at 3:30 p.m Watch for posters.

COST WAS HIGH

When Christmas greetings cards first came into their own in the United States, about 1875, some of the more elegant cards were encrusted with blown glass frosting and sold for as much as three dollars each.



Best Wishes

We would like to take this opportunity to wish everyone a Merry Christmas and a very prosperous New Year.

GAINFORD NEWS

It was cold, but forty members of Gainford Elks Lodge and Order of Royal Purple met in the hall on December 15th for their annual Christmas Supper and visit.

The children of Gainford and Seba Beach Playschool had a Christmas party on December 16, with mothers in attendance and Santa Claus putting in an appearance.

Mr. and Mrs. Shrader who live directly behind the Motel saw a lynx in their yard this week.

Mrs. Hebert reports Christmas is planned for at home with friends coming from the city beginning Christmas eve.

The Butts family are planning a family Christmas dinner at Mrs. Butts senior in the trailer.

Mr. and Mrs. Panchuk are off to warmer climate for awhile.

My telephone friend, Mrs. Klovansky is also away to have Christmas with her family.

It is an occasion when Mrs. Ruth McLellan goes to the city, she did just that this week. She went in with Mrs. Wolfensider of Evansburg.

Sympathy goes to Mrs. Venevicks, who lost a sister in Germany lately. She was looking forward to a visit of this sister in the near future, all the more sad.

At the Lawley house we had the Cornish family; our daughter; and family out on Sunday for their Christmas tree and supper with us. Reminissing, it is thirteen or fourteen months since they were out for a supper. Well grandmothers broken leg and grandchildren growing up with their youthful projects, it just wasn't possible. But grandmothers leg is better every day now.

Today brother Bill Woodley; and mother Mrs. L. Woodley stopped for a visit on their way home from the city.

Soon we shall be moving from Gainford. Talking to Mrs. Ruth McLachlan this afternoon, I do believe she will write our Gainford column, so phone her at 797-3990.

With this farewell - Happy New Year good friends.
